

Thank you to everyone who attended our last meeting. Their contact information is listed below.

We started the meeting with introductions of everyone in attendance and then Jim Renacci, who attended the meeting, introduced himself and expressed his desire to become the 16th District's next U.S. Congressman. He has announced his candidacy on the Republican ticket.

We updated the status of President Obama's plan to address our children while at school on Tuesday, September 8th. With concerned parents taking issue with the president's address and the federal Board of Education's suggested curriculum around the address, several area schools, including the Wadsworth school system decided to not show the address during school hours. Other area schools that opted out of showing the address are Medina, Highland, Strongsville, Black River, Cloverleaf and Buckeye schools.

We updated everyone and previewed the "Man on the Street" interviews, which are scheduled to begin airing on the local cable station around September 18th. WCTV also said that we will be given a normal time slot if we can keep them supplied with other videos. The next planned video is about Global Warming. Please continue to think of ideas for videos that will inform the local people about the need to become active and not stand idle while our liberties are stolen from us.

We reviewed the details of the upcoming trip to Washington D.C. for the national rally on September 12th.

The idea of sponsoring a family fun day to promote our organization has taken a different path. The plan to sponsor a tailgate party at one of the last Wadsworth home football games had a lot of interest. Adam Kennedy will be working on the coordination of this event. Bill Senger will check with city hall about the use of the pavilion and we will contact Dominos Pizza to see if they would like to donate pizzas or supply them at their cost.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, October 1st at 7:00 p.m. at the Steiner Center.
